Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Elements of Logic Everything in nature takes place according to laws. This, which is true of material things, is also true of the operations of the mind. These follow laws of which we are not always aware. Language, for instance, follows laws of grammar, and these laws in any particular language are the same, whatever the subject may be of which we are speaking. The exercise of the understanding in particular is itself governed by laws. Some of these only apply to special kinds of subject-matter, as, for example, the laws of number in mathematical reasoning. But there are others which hold good in all cases, whatever the subject-matter of our thoughts or reasonings may be. It is of these laws that Logic treats. Just as the rules of grammar are the same whatever the subject spoken of may be, so the rules of logic are the same, whatever the subject thought about or reasoned about.
