Excerpt: .Passing the woodpecker tree, I threw a stick at it for luck. It struck, and immediately the male Hairy left the nest. And as he flew to an oak tree near by, the notes he uttered seemed to be quit, quit, quit, get-Outof-this, you ve- ad-enough! But an egg-crank is hard to satisfy, and-soon there was another set of four Hairy Woodpecker s eggs in my collection. I did not get a chance to visit the Wood pecker again that year, and so do not know whether another set was laid or not. But I think that three sets from the same bird in one year is enough for most anyone. The following year on May 3. 1892, I was hunting for my Hairy again. The wind had blown over the nesting site of the previous year. However, in half an hour, the new...
